

Instill confidence in your organization's data collection practices with a GDPR assessment from CRI.

Why CRI?

In a time of never-ending privacy law changes, compliance has never been more critical for your business and consumer confidence. The EU's General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) went into effect in May of 2018 and impacts how organizations collect, process, market, use, and store the personal data of individuals in the EU, regardless of the organization's location. Instituting specific privacy protections for this data are required by GDPR, and failing to meet these requirements can result in hefty fines, not to mention lowered confidence in your brand. From understating the role of the Data Protection Officer (DPO) to establishing an Operational Life Cycle and Continuous Improvement, CRI can help your organization navigate the seemingly daunting complexities of GDPR so that you can remain focused on growing your business.
