

Stay future-ready with the peace of mind that a CRI peer review provides.

Why CRI?

The AICPA and most state boards of accountancy require public accounting firms to participate in a peer review every three years to evaluate and report on their systems of quality control and their audit* and accounting practices. Selecting the most compatible firm for your peer review is critical to realizing the full potential of your peer review.

Whether your firm is large or small, our diversity and depth of experience enable us to tailor our peer reviews to your practice. For larger firms, our technical knowledge enables us to analyze the most complex issues effectively and efficiently. In contrast, smaller firms that do not have the same resource accessibility as larger firms, we step in to help strengthen your quality controls and improve processes. CRI's reviewers have both large and small firm backgrounds and can provide this comprehensive suite of services while complying with AICPA peer review standards and delivering your required report.

While we prefer to perform peer reviews in-person to impart the most value, our technologies allow us to fulfill all, or a part, of the peer review remotely. From benchmarking and increasing the overall success of your practice to adapting to and complying with professional requirements, engaging the right firm for your peer review provides peace of mind for the future of your practice.
